Mission

The Department of Management, Marketing and Information Systems provides academically rigorous instruction on the use of analytical tools and theoretical concepts in information systems, management, management science, and marketing to help students understand and apply them to practical business problems in scientific, technological and traditional business environments, non-profits, and government agencies. The departmental faculty also develops and disseminates knowledge on diverse topics related to the information systems and assurance, management, management science, and marketing.

Marketing

A major in marketing allows those students with interests in developing and promoting products and services to gain the knowledge and skills needed to pursue careers in corporate and consumer marketing, supply chain management and acquisition. Since marketing is such a diverse area, the curriculum has been divided into four concentrations.

The Corporate Marketing (<http://catalog.uah.edu/undergrad/colleges-departments/business/marketing/marketing-bsba-corporate-marketing-concentration>) concentration focuses on the marketing activities involved in the business-to-business exchange process. In order for businesses to successfully complete this process, they need to consider things such as buyer behavior, channels of distribution, promotional activities, product development and relationship management. Marketing managers also conduct market research to investigate customer needs and determine appropriate marketing strategies. Marketing managers are responsible for the total development process for a firm's products and services. With an emphasis on a high technology environment, this concentration prepares students for careers in a variety of business and public sector organizations.

The Supply Chain Management (<http://catalog.uah.edu/undergrad/colleges-departments/business/marketing/marketing-bsba-supply-chain-management-concentration>) concentration involves all areas of the supply chain, from planning to distribution. The supply chain concentration prepares marketing students to manage inter-organizational relationships that are necessary to integrate the transportation, logistics, purchasing, information technology, and operations across the network of firms. This concentration is designed to prepare students for careers in supply chain management with industrial firms and public sector organizations such as the Department of Defense and NASA.

The Acquisition Management (<http://catalog.uah.edu/undergrad/colleges-departments/business/marketing/marketing-bsba-aquisition-management-concentration>) concentration focuses on activities and programs designed to obtain from suppliers the services and materials necessary to produce products and services. The program focuses on the management of government contracts. It includes contract administration, cost and price analysis, contract negotiation, and government contract law. This concentration prepares marketing students for entry level professional positions in acquisition management with the Federal government, government contractors and traditional industries.

The General Marketing (<http://catalog.uah.edu/undergrad/colleges-departments/business/marketing/marketing-bsba-general-marketing-concentration>) concentration is designed for students in Marketing who are interested in business-to-consumer marketing. This concentration helps students develop research skills to identify market opportunities and prepares students with the managerial acumen to be successful in consumer product marketing or in retail management. This concentration gives students the flexibility to customize their major field coursework to fit their particular career ambitions.
